Houghton, Mich.—Forest fires surrounding Ontonagon, which last night threatened destruction of the village, were believed to be under control today. The situation at Green, six miles away, has not been ascertained, but it is believed all residents are safe.

All the men of the town of Ontonagon joined the village fire department last night in fighting the flames on all sides, from five to seven miles from the village. No loss of life has occurred. The wind which rose last night blew the flames toward the village and much of the night and early morning hours were spent in water soaking buildings on the edge of the town.

Smoke was dense and affected the eyes and parched the throats of the villagers but today their alarm had largely subsided. At Green, farmers were driven from their homes but were reported to have taken refuge in a school house in a large cleared section.

FIRES UNDER CONTROL BUT

WIND MAY CHANGE SITUATION.

St. Paul—While all forest fires burning in Minnesota were being held in control today, the situation is grave. W. T. Cox, state forester said, and if a heavy wind should develop, the fires, undoubtedly would spread rapidly and probably menace outlying settlements in northern Minnesota. The next few days will be the deciding one, Mr. Cox said.

SETTLERS WARNED OF POSSIBLE DISASTER.

Milwaukee—Hundreds of brush fires extending from the vicinity of Houghton, Mich., along the southern shore of Lake Superior, through northern Minnesota almost to the Red river, were smoldering today, awaiting only a brisk wind to develop into a forest fire raging in all sections have been warned. Reports from the heads of forestry departments in Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota are to the effect that the fires are virtually all under control this morning, but drenching rain is the only thing which will eliminate the menace.

Statistics at the weather bureau show that a soaking rain has not been had in the north country since Sept. 17 and the recent frosts have dried vegetation, a factor which has even a small fire presents a menace.

Duluth—With one dead, five towns threatened by fire, navigation on the Great Lakes and bus line service alike hampered by a pall of heavy smoke, several settlers' cabins burned out, and thousands of dollars in property lost, forest fires raging in the northern part of their states started their second day of major destruction today.

Hundreds of fires which have been burning for some time, fanned all yesterday by a west wind, reached dangerous proportions, uniting and spreading.

WALTON OFFER TO RESIGN IGNORED BY LEGISLATURE

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Oklahoma City—Plans for an impeachment session of the state legislature, to convene tomorrow, moved forward Wednesday, apparently undisturbed by the offer made Tuesday night by Governor J. C. Walton to resign if the legislature would pass a bill which he has prepared, to unmask the Ku Klux Klan in Oklahoma.

The legislature will not traffic with the governor on legislation and thereby render him immune to the consequences of his acts. Representative McBee declared Wednesday, "Governor Walton's offer to make a martyr of himself by his offer to resign will affect in no way plans of the legislature." Mr. McBee declared house members will caucus Wednesday night, as planned, and that the organization of the house will be complete when the session opens Thursday.

The governor's friends asserted his offer of resignation would not be ignored when the house comes face to face with the question of whether to proceed with the impeachment proceedings or to take up the anti-klan legislation.

STINNES PARLEYS Paris Dealing at Present Directly With Industrialists and Labor.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Berlin—Negotiations between members of the Reich government and representatives of the Ruhr industrialists, regarding measures which may be taken for the resumption of work in the occupied areas, was begun yesterday, it was stated today. Minister of Defense Cuno has withdrawn the decree imposing a censorship on military news.

BULLETIN

Berlin—The Nationalist and Communist in the Reichstag, voting jointly, succeeded today in effecting postponement until Thursday of the third reading of Chancellor Stresemann's authorization bill giving him wide authority in the dictation of measures for economic rehabilitation. The indication was they hoped ultimately to defeat the measure through filibustering tactics.

Paris—Herr Von Hoersch, the German chargé d'affaires, called on Premier Poincaré today and offered the co-operation of the Reich to negotiate the resumption of work in the normal economic life of the Ruhr.

Premier Poincaré replied that inasmuch as negotiations were in progress in the Ruhr with groups of industrialists and labor leaders, he did not consider it advisable to begin further conversations on the same subject.

He informed Herr Von Hoersch that when Germany was ready to make a proposition covering the entire reparations question, he would be glad to consider it.

WILL AWAIT ACTION BY REPARATION COMMISSION

Paris—Although Germany's request for information as to whether France and Belgium would accept the offer of the resumption of work in the occupied territories has not been officially communicated to the French government, it was said at the foreign ministry today. The French government will wait for the reparation commission to act on any German proposal and would not send representatives into the Ruhr to confer with Berlin's spokesmen.

VETERANS TAKING "AGGIE" WORK TO MEET IN MADISON

Madison.—Sixty-three world war veterans, who are now receiving training on Badger farms, will be brought together at the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, Oct. 17 and 18, for a two-day institute and meeting. Operating farms throughout the state, these veterans are being aided by the government in a financial way while they receive instructions from the state farm school. Each month four demonstrations are held on each of the individual farms as part of the instruction which the men receive. The program which is planned for the gathering is very practical in its nature. Orchard keeping, poultry, dairy, culture, dairying and work with field crops will be taken up from the practical standpoint, being supplemented by actual demonstrations. The institute is expected to be of more value to the men.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Tillamook, Daisy Butter King, DeCoi, prize winner entry of the Carnation stock farm, Seattle, Wash., and Oconomowoc, Wis., the grand champion of the United States, having won that designation today at the National Dairy exposition here. The junior championship of the United States was awarded to the "Madam Adeline Segis, also owned by the Carnation stock farms. Hens Yield More Wealth to Nation Than Wheat Crop

Chicago.—Many jokes are sprung at the expense of the little old hen, but her reasons for crossing the road still remain a mystery. Likewise, there is the age-old question as to whether or not she or the wheat crop is the biggest yielder in the history of the egg industry and in excess of the wheat crop. There is much political agitation over the matter, but the hen is not asking any special legislation. These facts were given out in advance of the annual meeting of the National Poultry, Butter and Egg Association, to be held here this week. Data assembled from many sources show that thrifty wives have paid their household expenses and in several cases life insurance by the sale of eggs and chickens alone. The average per capita consumption of eggs in Illinois alone is seventeen dozen a year; and poultry three and one-half pounds.

SHORTHORNS IN DEMAND

Recent sales and the number of requests for catalogues received for the coming sales, indicate an active demand for Milking Shorthorns. Marquart Brothers, Milton Junction report the sale of a seven months old roan bull to Edward Gerner, West Bend, Wis., at 10 months old bull to William Sommerfeldt, Janesville, a year old bull to James McGee, Black Earth, two cows to August Handke, Janesville, two cows to W. Kittell, Hanover and a yearling to William Sommerfeldt.

GUERNSEY CATALOGUES OUT

Much attention is attracted by the Southern Wisconsin Guernsey sale to be held in Janesville on Oct. 16. The catalogue will be assembled, the latter part of this week and be ready for the sale ring. A total of 70 purebreds will be sold during the afternoon and 70 high grades during the evening. Catalogues can be obtained by calling at the Gazette information desk for this sale and the two Milking Shorthorn auctions.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Secretary of Agriculture Wallace told the National Dairy congress that readjustment now in progress would end discontent among farmers.

FEAR DISCORD ON HUGHES PROPOSAL

Irreconcilables Uneasy Over Lloyd George's O. K. to Plan.

Copyright, 1923, by Janesville Daily Gazette.

Washington.—Former Premier Lloyd George's suggestion that the time is ripe for an acceptance of the Hughes plan to form a commission to study the reparations question is causing some uneasiness among those who constitute the "irreconcilable" group in American politics. Never has there been a time when the possible exception of the Bratton world court issue, when the prospect of dragging Europe into the campaign was as little desired by the leaders of the republican party, who sincerely want unity instead of discord. While Secretary Hughes did not propose anything that commits the United States to an involvement in European politics, his plan even at this date is looked upon by the "irreconcilables" as a step toward greater participation in European affairs and they don't want America to indulge even in unofficial conferences.

Hughes' plan, which is being discussed in the United States, is to form a commission to study the reparations question. The plan is to have a commission of five members, three from the United States and two from Europe. The commission is to report to the president within six months. The plan is to have a commission of five members, three from the United States and two from Europe. The commission is to report to the president within six months.

Secretary Hughes made his suggestion about an informal commission of inquiry as early as last December, and about the only thing that Mr. Coolidge has divulged on foreign policy has been an expression which indicated that the Hughes speech still remained the policy of the United States government. In that speech Mr. Hughes did down the proposition that unofficial persons representing each country but necessarily each government could sit down and estimate the capacity of Germany to pay and the possibilities of extending credit to Germany.

Adjustment Was Felt Certain.—The thought back of this plan was that once the representatives of all concerned did get into conference with the sincere purpose of reaching a settlement, an adjustment was inevitable. Mr. Hughes hoped at the time to avert an invasion of the Ruhr but Premier Poincare was so intent upon making that move that the Hughes proposal was for diplomatic reasons construed by the French government as an informal and unofficial proposal. France is therefore in the position of being able to accept the proposition now if she so desires. With the ending of passive resistance the general belief was that a direct settlement between France and Germany was forthcoming. But the disturbed condition of affairs inside Germany has revived the idea that the co-operation of the German people and the reconciliation of political elements in Germany will not be brought about until some sign of stability appears from the outside to instill confidence. The fact that an international loan would unquestionably come out of the proceedings of an international commission such as Mr. Hughes proposed would have a powerful effect on economic conditions in Germany. Bankers and business men are hopeful that an economic settlement can yet be made, and that's why the comment of Mr. Lloyd George that it is still time to act on the Hughes plan is regarded here as a significant boost for the plan.

Conditions Vital to U. S.—It is pertinent to note that treasury officials in denying rumors of unemployment and pessimistic reports about future business conditions do not fail to allude to the possible adverse effect which European conditions may have on American markets. Farm organizations are beginning to take an interest in improving Europe's purchasing power so that a light for co-operation with Europe might see a different line than that which developed over the league of nations or world court issues. It seems almost certain that the group which favored an international economic conference a year ago will be found supporting the Hughes plan for a commission of inquiry into the reparations problem. Should such support develop it would not be surprising if further inquiries were made of France as to the possible acceptance at this time of the Hughes plan.

Secretary Hughes made his suggestion about an informal commission of inquiry as early as last December, and about the only thing that Mr. Coolidge has divulged on foreign policy has been an expression which indicated that the Hughes speech still remained the policy of the United States government.

France is therefore in the position of being able to accept the proposition now if she so desires.

With the ending of passive resistance the general belief was that a direct settlement between France and Germany was forthcoming. But the disturbed condition of affairs inside Germany has revived the idea that the co-operation of the German people and the reconciliation of political elements in Germany will not be brought about until some sign of stability appears from the outside to instill confidence. The fact that an international loan would unquestionably come out of the proceedings of an international commission such as Mr. Hughes proposed would have a powerful effect on economic conditions in Germany. Bankers and business men are hopeful that an economic settlement can yet be made, and that's why the comment of Mr. Lloyd George that it is still time to act on the Hughes plan is regarded here as a significant boost for the plan.

Adjustment Was Felt Certain.—The thought back of this plan was that once the representatives of all concerned did get into conference with the sincere purpose of reaching a settlement, an adjustment was inevitable. Mr. Hughes hoped at the time to avert an invasion of the Ruhr but Premier Poincare was so intent upon making that move that the Hughes proposal was for diplomatic reasons construed by the French government as an informal and unofficial proposal. France is therefore in the position of being able to accept the proposition now if she so desires.

GREAT BIRTHRIGHT IN WISCONSIN

Mrs. Kellogg of State Historical Library Opens Women's Federation.

Pond du Lac.—The people of Wisconsin have a birthright in the history of their commonwealth of which they should be proud. Dr. Louise Phelps Kellogg of the state historical library declared in an address before the Wisconsin Federation of Women's club meeting of their convention here. Reasons for being proud of the state were enumerated by Dr. Kellogg during her talk on "Wisconsin's Seventy-fifth Birthday," which follows:

OLDEST LAND IN CONTINENT

"First, the state can pride itself for its physical geography, containing some of the oldest, if not the oldest, land on the continent; for its position at the head of the great lakes and the Mississippi valley; forming the connecting link between these two great systems; for the beauty of its lakes and streams, the product of glacial ages, and its unique driftless area with its attractive peaks, mounds, and rolling surfaces. "Secondly, we are proud of Wisconsin for its notable and varied history—first visited by White men nearly three centuries ago, 14 years after the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth, Wisconsin was part of nearly a century of the kingdom of French monarchs, visited by French officers, noblemen, explorers, missionaries, and voyageurs; then for a half century it was a unit of the British empire, exploited by Scotch fur traders and entrepreneurs. "Then Wisconsin, ceded to the United States, became a part successively of the Northwest Territory, of Indiana, Illinois and Michigan territories. Its separate existence as a political unit began in 1835, within the memory of some now living. After 12 years of tutelage as a territory, Wisconsin came of age in 1848, and became the thirtieth state in the union, a self-governing, active commonwealth. "This year we celebrate our seventy-fifth birthday. Settled during territorial days for the most part by pioneers of New England and New York origin, we have become one of the 'melting pots' of the nation, receiving into our ample fields Europe's surplus people, educating them and making of them loyal citizens of our country and of Wisconsin. From an agricultural state we have become one in which industry has taken a share from a homogeneous community we have become a diversified one from a frontier of simple living we have become a great civilized commonwealth. In all the efforts that have accomplished these results women have borne their full share, as pioneer mothers, and as educated leaders, no state has a higher record for the activities and abilities of its women. We, the inheritors of this heritage—a history of 300 years, an American growth of 75 years—must hand it on undimmed to posterity."

THANKS COURT FOR HELPING HER TO LEAD BETTER LIFE

Arrested in Janesville on June 25, 1923, on a charge of "loitering about the city for immoral purposes," Mary Duenna has written a letter to Judge H. L. Maxfield, advising him that she is going to get back on the "straight and narrow path" and thanking him for his advice and instructions which brought her to a decision to go straight. At the time of her arraignment in court, the Duenna woman was lectured and given her choice of a jail sentence or leaving town and staying away. She chose the latter, the letter, "for bettering my life by your decision to remove me from the temptation of wrong doing which my continued residence in Janesville would have involved, and which you removed forever by ordering me to remain away. I wish to inform you that I have decided on a 'movement of reform' which I hope will meet the entire approval of the whole world. "As the decision rendered in your court was the means of my beginning this term, I think you will be interested in the good your court is doing, to the extent of being glad to know this. I am leaving Rockford this afternoon—destination unknown—but suffice it to say that my leaving here is but to conform to the reform I have spoken of. "I bid you a last good-bye and

REMIT $1,115,000 OVER OBJECTION OF ZIMMERMAN

Madison.—The emergency board, composed of the state treasurer and secretary of state, voted at its meeting yesterday, two to one, to remit $1,115,000 of state taxes for next year.

Fred Zimmerman, secretary of state, opposed the plan submitted by Governor Blaine and supported by Treasurer Solomon, for not remission, after expressing himself as in favor of using the additional funds to help meet Wisconsin's Civil war debt, amounting to $2,653,000. This debt had come up since 1875. It is owed to the common and normal school funds.

Should Pay Debt.—As far back as 1911, John S. Donahoe, secretary of state, pointed out the unbusinesslike methods of this phase of the state financial system. Zimmerman said that time Mr. Donahoe pointed out the certain case of indebtedness amounted to $2,251,000, drawing 7 per cent interest. It has been reduced slightly, but the interest charge remains.

"I do not believe the remission is based on a sound argument. It is a gift to the state against a $4,000,000,000 assessment. It means that a farmer with a $4,000 farm would be reduced $1. In the meantime we have a state debt as old as Methuselah and we do not pay it off."

Surplus Is Remitted.—The resolution, adopted by the vote of Governor Blaine and Mr. Zimmerman, recited that the governor has ascertained the financial condition of the state, as provided by statute, and that there will be a surplus of $1,115,000 over financial needs. The remission is made to apply to that portion of the state tax levy which produces funds for the university, which will be levied of all the university mill tax will be levied.

WROUGHT IN NORTH
WOODS BY FLAMES

sweeping onward with renewed vigor. Mildred Koliva, 3, who wandered in the woods near Mohawk, Mich., and was burned to death, was the first person reported killed by the flames.

Guard Ordered Out.—Late last night Governor Blaine of Wisconsin ordered out the Wisconsin National guard to fight the fire raging through the state park at Manitowish Falls.

Hundreds of men are backtracking through heavy brush to try to save the villages of Ellettsburg, a small Douglas county community, and Lake Nebagamon. Hawthorne also is in jeopardy. Three farms north of Ellettsburg have been burned out and all cattle destroyed. Ontonagon, the seat of Ontonagon county, is threatened by fires surrounding the village, and the town of Green, six miles away, is in danger. Lumbermen estimate 60 square miles already have been burned over. In this locality, as well as several in Houghton, Keweenaw and Baraga counties are moving to open spaces for safety. Two summer cottages at Twin Lakes, south of Houghton, were burned and others are threatened.

Flames Dot 4 Counties.—Douglas, Ashland, Bayfield and Ironwood counties in Wisconsin are dotted with flames. Ironwood is described as tortured and heavy smoke hangs low over the land. Navigation on Lake Superior has become a serious problem, the smoke covering the water more densely than the heaviest fog. Wisconsin highway No. 30, between Ashland and Hurley has been made impassable by flames and smoke. Near Hurley the entire woods is burning and the whole town of Drummond, west of Ashland, turned out to fight fires. Near Kimball, Ashland county, considerable loss from burning of cut lumber was reported. Brush fires rage between Saxon and Lake Superior. A number of buildings have been destroyed by the fire near the Wisconsin-Michigan boundary between Houghton and Keweenaw, Mich.

High Winds Fan Fires.—More than a dozen small fires, mostly brush and peat, fanned by high winds, reached serious proportions in all directions from Hibbing, Minn., last night. A large number of men and fire apparatus were rushed to a serious blaze at Little Swan. The heavy smoke in this section forced busses to change their routings, because driving was impossible.

MAY SAVE POWER PLANT
FROM FLAMES NEAR SAXON
Ironwood, Mich.—A crew of men fighting fires that threatened the power plant of the Lake Superior District Power company here, at Saxon, Wis., 14 miles from here, at 2 Tuesday night abandoned the plant and fled for safety when the fire turned back on them with the changing wind. Early this morning, however, the fire had died down and there were indications that they could get it under control. The fire did not reach the plant.

WILL BE UNDER CONTROL
IF WIND DOES NOT RISE
Madison.—Forest fires burning near Superior will soon be under control unless a heavy wind springs up, according to word received today by Col. Frank Schantz, assistant adjutant general, from an officer of the headquarters company, 12th field artillery, Wisconsin National guard, engaged in fighting the fires.

NIGHT PROWLER SOUGHT BY POLICE

Scares Reported from Four Homes in City, Two of Them This Week.

With reports of a night prowler having disturbed four homes in Janesville within the past two weeks, police are putting forth every effort to locate the intruder and it is promised the man, or men, will be dealt with none too leniently if apprehended.

The reports of a man having been heard or seen peering into windows and trying doors of houses have come from four wards, three on the east side. The latest one came Tuesday night from Madison street in the first ward where it was declared a man was seen trying to open the windows and doors of a home. The police were called about 8:30 o'clock but the intruder had become frightened and had left in the meantime.

One suspect was picked up in a search of the neighborhood but was released after the person who saw the prowler failed to identify him, although he was of the opinion the suspect might be the man wanted.

From the second ward it was learned that a woman heard noises about her house on Fifth avenue at 10 p. m. Tuesday but did not call the police. When she investigated, the next morning, she said she found the screens removed from two cellar windows.

Other scares occurred at homes on South Main street and St. Lawrence avenue several days ago.

FIRES STOPPED IN 2 BIG BUILDINGS

Waste Shafts at Cotton Plant Ablaze—Fire in Myers Hotel Basement.

Two of the largest buildings in the business district—the Myers hotel, 1 South Main street, and the Rock River cotton company's plant, 1160 West street, were threatened with heavy damage by fire Wednesday but early discovery of the blaze and summoning of the fire department held the losses to a small figure. It was the third day of national fire prevention week.

An overheated smoke pipe in the basement of the Myers hotel was the cause of the blaze which called out the department at 7:20 a. m. Jolts above the pipe became ignited but the blaze was extinguished before it had caused more than a few dollars' damage.

The cotton plant fire at noon resulted in a loss of approximately $100; the interior of two waste shafts being gutted. The shafts are located at the north end of the building on the River street side and are used to carry waste, lint and dust to the boiler room. The walls of wood, the exteriors are lined with metal so the flames were confined to the inside.

The department laid two loads of hose and worked the job three quarters of an hour. City Manager Henry Traxler watched the firemen work. Assisting the local department was Gliman H. Stordick, member of the fire department who was in the city on a visit Wednesday when the fire broke out.

A short circuit in the private alarm system of the Samson tractor plant caused a run at 9:10 a. m. Wednesday.

LEGION ELECTION ON OCTOBER 30

Ballots to be Sent Every Member for Voting on New Officers.

Discussion of plans for nominating officers for the coming year and making the annual meeting rival for attendance and enthusiasm that of last year was made at the semi-monthly meeting of the American Legion Tuesday night.

It is planned to send out ballots to place the selections of each member for the various officers from commander to sergeant at arms. It is expected that in this way the sentiment of the club members will be accurately indicated.

The five highest will be placed in nomination at the election at the annual meeting Oct. 30. The fifth highest will be holding its annual meeting this year in October instead of January is taking a step ahead of the other posts in the state.

At the annual convention, the annual meeting starting with 1924 was fixed for October but whether it was held at that time this year was left optional with the posts. It is considered the best time to hold it, the fall and winter months see the greatest activity among the posts. It is therefore believed that it will work to the advantage of the post to hold the same officers continue through the winter, rather than to change in the middle of the season.

FIRST DESIGN FOR THEATER SPECIFIED COLUMN SUPPORTS

rote atop the wall and pilasters to distribute the load over a greater area.

"Do you know why the steel pilasters were omitted?"

"No, I do not," replied Pierson.

"Do you know why the concrete columns or grillage work was omitted?"

"No," answered the witness.

Questioned as to the truss work the witness declared the Hennecke outfit followed the architect's outline.

"Was it proper designing or engineering to support the pent house on one side of the building?"

"The truss was designed properly according to the plans," answered the witness.

Questioned further the witness admitted that it would have been better to have not supported the extra weight of the pent house on an angled truss for one of rectangular shape.

Pierson after having inspected the wreck advanced as his explanation of the wreck "excessive loads on the truss."

"Do you ever talk with the architects about the insufficiency of the walls and pilasters?"

"No—my first design called for the steel columns but after the conference with Mr. Willis, the job was refigured as cost for the steel work with concrete supports and this bid was submitted," stated Pierson.

"As a matter of fact neither the re-inforced columns or grillage work was put in the building?"

said and that the truss support was not sufficient."

W. C. Graves, traveling salesman, was next called to the stand. Graves had been "gully" of expressing his version of the collapse in the "Voice of the People" column in the Gazette and gave his opinion on the stand that the building was too heavy and could not be supported by the walls.

The counsel sought to "mislead Graves" knowledge of the building and treat the testimony in a slanting manner. T. M. Wilcox challenged the estimate made by Graves on the weight of the roof and said when the witness was in error. It is held significant that while the state engineers are competent and adept at figuring the weight of the building, they are not so competent at figuring the weight of the roof.

Y. M. C. A. DRIVE PASTORS ATTEND REACHES $7,829 LUTHERAN SESSION

Halfway Mark Is Passed in Campaign for Funds by Association.

Goal Amount subscribed 15,500
Amount subscribed 7,829
Remaining 7,671

More than half of the $15,500, which is the goal of the Y. M. C. A. membership campaign, had been subscribed Wednesday noon, the second day of the campaign.

Forty men were in the field Wednesday forenoon and 30 attended the noon luncheon, at which reports were made. Team No. 4, under the leadership of Sidney Beckwith, had collected the most during the day, $330.

Other teams reported as follows: C. S. Atwood, $204; George King, $15; Ralph Morse, $186; F. S. Baltes, $30; Arthur Arthur, $37; H. H. Ellis, $30; Ed. Amperoff, $107; Sidney Bliss, $30; William Bailey, $120; O. N. Nelson, $145; Charles Tooten, $33; E. M. Crockett, $23; Jesse Earle, $37; F. O. Rolt, $34. Other teams did not report at noon.

Dr. W. A. Maddox, president of Edgerton college, spoke of "Education" at Wednesday's luncheon, quoting statistics showing chances for success for people of various degrees of education. Dr. Maddox stressed the spiritual advantage of an education rather than the financial, but gave the following facts in favor of the latter: Boys leaving school at 14 years, at the age of 21 years, a difference of $351, or $28.55 for every day during high school.

Dr. W. A. Maddox said that out of 1,287, only 280 had a high school education, but they earned $222 to the others $318.

Referring to the names listed in "Who Who in America," he stated that a college graduate had an average of 15 of having his name entered there while the man with no education had one chance in 2,000,000. Three-fifths of the men who achieve success are college graduates, according to Dr. Maddox, and only one percent of the population falls within this class, giving the leadership of the nation into the hands of this small number.

Music during the noon hour was furnished by William Bennett at the piano and Sidney Bliss, violin. John Koller received much applause through his magic tricks.

Screen Talk

That Huntley Gordon was a hero of both track and gridiron in his college days is easily believed when one recalls his tall, athletic form on the screen. After his college days he started his career as a bank clerk, drifted into stock and from there to the screen.

Always a favorite for leads, he made a particularly good impression with his work in "The Famous Mrs. Fair," a Fred Niblo production in which he played opposite Myrtle Stedman. In "Bluebird's Eighth Wife," with Gloria Swanson, his fine stage presence and splendid acting shone in part for the somewhat naive story.

Huntley Gordon.
Mr. Gordon has now signed a three-year contract with Louis B. Mayer, and his first work for Mr. Mayer is an star part in "The Waters," a romantic story of New York society life. The picture is booked for early fall release. Marie Prevost, Norma Shearer, Robert Ellis, Gertrude Astor and other stars of the studio will share the honors with Mr. Gordon.

CARRIEL MYERS MOST BEAUTIFUL
Nikola Murrat, a Hungarian painter and sculptor who turned photographer and whose fine work has attracted the attention of New York artists, declares that Miss Carruel Myers is the most beautiful woman he has yet photographed.

Miss Myers has just finished the role of Countess Adora in George D. Baker's production of "The Magic Skin," at the Goldwyn Studio, and has now been cast by Rupert Hughes in one of the leading roles of "Law Against Law."

17 SEWER FUNDS TO BE CONSOLIDATED
Elimination of the 17 sanitary sewer districts by the city council is welcomed by the city manager as a means of simplifying bookkeeping in the city clerk's office and making for more efficiency in laying sewers in the future. The manager said there will be no inequality in making one district out of the 17 because the funds in each district are all about the same, except one which has several thousand dollars in it to be expended for the McKee boulevard sewer now being built. The other funds amount $200 each, he said, and this money will all be put in one fund.

100 WAYS To Make Money
BY WILLIE WINNER
If I Sold Roofing—
I would sell to builders of hen houses, garages, or summer houses. I would get in touch with owners needing repairs on the roofs of their homes. I would either do this work myself or employ someone to do it. I would offer service with my roofing.
I would buy used roofing in good repair where buildings were being torn down. This would be just the thing for sheds and other small buildings. I could sell it at a reasonable price, too. I would also buy roofing from contractors having a surplus on their hands after they had completed their building operations.
I would do this buying and selling through Janesville Gazette Want Ads. Both buyers and sellers would come to me to get my price. Mutual satisfaction would be the result.

"Great men are the ambassadors of Providence sent to reveal to their fellow men their unknown selves. To them is granted the power to call forth the best there is in those who come under their influence. Sometimes they have come as great captains, commanders of men, who have heeded out empires; sometimes as statesmen, ministering to the well-being of their country; sometimes as painters and poets, showing new realms of beauty, sometimes as philosophers and preachers, revealing to the race 'the way, the truth and the light,' but always as inspirers of noble action, translating high ideals into the practical affairs of life."

The Master Wields the Whip

Simon Legree Stinnes, growing in power as master of Germany since the republic was established, multi-millionaire out of distress of his native land, holder with his fellow Thyssen, of almost the entire dictation of the Ruhr industry, has told the German government what to do and what policy to pursue in the Ruhr. Good or bad as it may be, the whip of this man is a determining factor in the destiny of Germany. Once men conquered with marching armies and with bloodshed and battle, but in Germany now the people are conquered, not by militarists but by the same character of industrialists, ruthless as Attila and as autocratic as ever Kaiser or czar. Stinnes is charged with having stabbed Stresemann's government in the back; with having assumed governmental powers by personally opening negotiations with the French commander in the Ruhr, Gen. De Goutte, and while having, through his newspapers, given support to the nationalist movement against France, secretly been in opposition to the policy his own newspapers have supported. Stinnes, angered because an attempt was made by the government to reduce the price of coal to the people of Germany and in which Stinnes was making millions by this profiteering, used all his power to destroy the first Stresemann cabinet and succeeded. George Bernhard, editor of the Vossische Zeitung, government newspaper, openly calls Stinnes a traitor to Germany.

Stinnes is the most remarkable business buccaner this world has ever known. He purchased enormous properties after the armistice, on the basis of paper marks and went into debt for millions. As the mark depreciated he could pay the debts with rapidly decreasing value in marks and at the same time the value of his properties was not diminishing. He interposed every obstacle, as the record shows, to stabilizing the mark or giving to taxes and other obligations gold values. Properties for which he had agreed to pay several million dollars were eventually paid for by him with a few hundred dollars of actual gold mark exchange value though the number of paper marks agreed upon remained the same. Today, with the mark worthless, debts are merely written off and the creditor is ruined while Stinnes profits.

Shorn of all political and sentimental considerations, this is the situation in Germany. Warnings have been sounded over and over again, but here in America, among the worshippers of the golden calf and of success counted only in dollars, we have had a soft side for the man who has ruined Germany and made of her people a nation of slaves to the actual dictator—Hugo Stinnes. Until he is wiped off the economic slate there will be little possibility of Germany getting back on a stable basis.

If the price of coal keeps going up we will have several fire prevention weeks.

Senator Capper, of Kansas owns several agricultural papers. It is not hard to read pessimism when he is talking to farmers through them. But when he advertises for business he says, "The estimated incomes for the farms of America for 1923, is a billion dollars in excess of their income in 1922." "Rural trade will be good, this year—in come lines exceptionally good." We hope that the senator is telling the whole truth when he seeks and less of it when he is deciding to cry, "Peace, peace when there is no peace," as he says in his statement of policy.

William Z. Foster is getting the kind of welcome which would be granted a rattlesnake or a pole cat in all labor conventions which he has attended recently.

When Governor Pinchot ordered the prohibition law enforced in Philadelphia, the saloons defied him. How could they do it if the police were not in league with the saloons? Mayor Dever of Chicago, has been discovering that angle of the enforcement problem and police captains have lost jobs in consequence. Law cannot be enforced when the officials elected or appointed to enforce the law are splitting with the criminals.

Some elements in the old republican machine are getting ready to toss Coolidge overboard. It is believed however, that he is an expert swimmer on the political sea.

Here's a man who asserts his wife has been beating him for 36 years with clubs. There are others who have been beaten by wives with

COOPERATIVE IMPORTATION

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington.—The next device to increase and protect American foreign trade probably will be the import combination. In all probability congress will be asked at the forthcoming session to enact legislation which will authorize combinations of importers, dealing in the same general lines of goods, to form associations or co-operative organizations through which they may jointly import their goods. Importers are in need of some new method to enable them to keep possession of their home market.

About a year ago a new flood of imports began coming into the United States. The Fordney tariff bill was designed to keep them out so that the American market would be kept as a special prerogative of the American producer and manufacturer but it did not succeed well at this. The reason is the high price and wage level in this country. Over the last 12 to 18 months prices have been climbing up. By the first of 1923 they had reached a level where foreign, made goods, produced with cheap labor, could come into the United States, pay the high tariff rates, and still undersell American goods made with the highest paid labor in the world.

There are many American manufacturers using foreign raw material. They import this, manufacture it into finished goods in the United States and sell to the American consumers. They can buy abroad on about the same basis with foreign manufacturers using the same types of raw material, but when the material is brought here for manufacture, higher labor and other costs enter so that the finished product must bring a higher price than the same sort of article manufactured abroad. Therefore, the importers desire legislation which will enable them to import their raw materials more advantageously. It is believed that an import combination would bring this about.

A typical example of the problem is furnished by the rubber industry. About a year ago, this industry awakened to a realization that Great Britain, which controls the best tree rubber in the world, had placed an import restriction and a high export tax on the rubber produced in the various British tropical colonies. This added about 200,000,000 a year to the American rubber bill. Inasmuch as the various crude rubber importers were all working independently, they were unable to combat the move and had to pay the price. It is thought that had there been an import combination in existence, it could have exerted enough influence to have prevented the British action or at least could have made co-operative arrangements which would have cut down the cost of importing.

The same situation is true of a number of products which are necessary to American manufacture but which are not produced on American territory. Spain, for instance, controls the cork, Japan, the camphor, Peru the guanine, Mexico the sisal, India the jute, and Chile the nitrates. All of these products are used in great quantities in American manufacture and all come from foreign sources. The Department of Commerce has been assisting the importers in working out more advantageous methods than now exist for the importation of these commodities and has even gone so far as to send forth expeditionary sealing parties where rubber can be produced under American control but, as matters stand now, even though the government can be of much assistance, the importers are all competing against each other because each is acting separately. The foreign producers of these important raw materials know the situation. They know that two American consumers are just as likely to bid against each other for supplies as an American and a Frenchman. As the result of this bidding, the price is run up to a high point and this high price must be reflected in the final retail selling price of the finished product to the American consumer.

If American importers of rubber, for instance, were permitted to form an import association, competition in buying the raw material would diminish. The rubber planters in the tropics would find that, instead of having a hundred separate American customers, all bidding against each other and running up the price, there would be but one customer, a co-operative buying agency. The United States consumes more rubber than all the rest of the world.

The Sherman law forbids such combinations at present. The government takes the position that it is unwise to permit dealers or manufacturers to combine and anti-trust suits are brought against all such attempted combinations. The reason for this is that it is feared that if the rubber manufacturers all were working together they not only would be able to get low prices in buying their raw material but would agree on uniform high prices in selling their product to the public. It is recognized that there would be an advantage in permitting the manufacturers to combine to get low prices if the low prices would benefit the ultimate consumer. The task before congress, in framing the new legislation, is to devise some scheme by which the manufacturers could be permitted to combine in buying raw materials from foreigners, but which would not permit them to remain in combination when it came to the selling. In a word, the new law must provide that the rubber trade or the jute trade can work as a trust or a combination outside the three mile line, but that outside of this separate dealers and manufacturers within the United States. This will prove a difficult task.

Exporters now are permitted to combine. The Webb-Foster act, passed a few years ago, authorizes exporters to form combinations to sell their goods abroad. The American government is not concerned with the operations of a trust which is selling only to foreigners. It seeks merely to protect the American people from domination by a trust. Fifty-five export corporations have been organized and are doing fairly well. They have their agents abroad and an association of copper exporters, for instance, will handle all copper exports. Competition among the members does not exist. Whereas the independent copper exporters formerly would cut prices and compete with each other in selling their product to various foreign purchasers, they now through the export combination, deal through the single manager. The individual producer is merged in the association. The association is engaged in the sale and forwarding agent for all members alike. When this law was written the utmost precautions were taken to prevent these combinations of exporters from turning around and selling in the domestic market. They are not allowed to sell a pound of their wares within the country but may get any price possible outside.

It will not be an easy task to get congress to pass an import combination bill because there will be many senators and representatives who will think that a combination is permitted to exist; it will be used by its members to exploit the domestic market as well as to get advantage of co-operative purchasing abroad.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

AUTUMN.
I wondered all the summer long about a certain tree.
It was a frail and twisted thing, and poor it seemed to be.
Its handsome brothers feared at it,
The shapely maples anered at it,
And towered above it in their pride and winked their eyes in scorn.
I fancied I could hear them say:
"That useless tree is in the way;
Twere better for the woods we rule if it had not been born."

It lived, and yet it had no grace—
I wondered why it grew.
The weakest brother of its race, despised and lonely,
And of its plight, 'Tis lovely scene
Were fairer if that tree had been Cut down, so men would never know or see its sorry state.
That twisted trunk, those branches bare,
Destroy the landscape's splendor there.
It is the beggar of the clan before the palace gate."

And like the beggar, day by day, I fancied I could hear it plead:
"Almost Alms of drink and food I beg. Pray give to one in need."
But trees, like men, when they are strong
Forget the weak and pass along;
That ill-shap'd tree, that leafless rag, no touch of friendship found.
I watched it struggling to survive.
At times I thought it scarce alive.
But still it weathered storm and gale when mightier trees were downed.

Now autumn with its matchless paints has visited once more
And, strange to tell, in scarlet stands the beggar of the clan.
That poor and twisted, helpless tree
Which once was pitiful to see,
Lends splendor to the distant scene, the fairest of the fair.
And who was a doubting man.
Now too he speaks of the plan
And understand that twisted tree and why God placed it there.

Who's Who Today

COL. GEORGE B. HARVEY.
The recent announcement by the state department that Col. George B. Harvey would resign his post as American ambassador in London, has been taken by politicians as an indication that he wants to be foot-loose and care-free to handle President Coolidge's campaign next year. If Coolidge becomes a candidate, Harvey is expected to play a prominent part in the Republican campaign no matter how the party finally lines up.
Harvey was born at Peacham, Vt., in 1867, and was educated at its academy. When 18 he went to work as a reporter on the Springfield Republican and three years later joined the staff of the New York World and was its managing editor from 1900 to 1901.

Nine years later he purchased the North American Review, and the same year became head of the publishing house of Harper & Brothers. Holding the editorship of Harper's Weekly and the North American Review at the same time he became known for his political writings between 1900 and 1912, and when Woodrow Wilson was proposed as the democratic nominee for president at Baltimore in 1912, Harvey gave to him his enthusiastic support.
Before the election a break occurred between them, when Harvey informed Wilson that his support had become more an embarrassment than a help. Soon after this Harvey sold Harper's Weekly to Norman Hapgood and founded Harvey's Weekly.

In the campaign of 1916 he gave his support to Charles E. Hughes, and in the last campaign threw his whole influence into the scale for Harding.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO
Oct. 10, 1883.—The farewell concert for Mrs. H. A. Smith was given in the Congregational church last night. More than 400 people attended it. Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

"COMPLETE BREAKDOWN"
Something was the matter with the old boy. He usually awoke in the morning, and behaved recently in low and incoherent manner, but as soon as the driver slipped into high gear he began to grumble and limp. Just couldn't get going. He was the old boy who had lost his false teeth or contracted locomotor ataxia. Dragged her freight slowly and painfully down to the service station. Shop foreman took the history and shook his head. Hoppled from the history, that her crankshaft bearings were burnt out. (Still he wasn't sure. He got in and drove her around the block, shifting gears, starting, and returned to the shop and shook his head some more. Put a mechanic underneath to look for loose bolts in the universal or maybe it was broken over in the place gear. Anyway the mechanic could find nothing wrong. Well, they fussed around and made three or four alarming tentative diagnoses, until finally all eyes hanging around the place called the driver's attention to the fact that his left rear tire was flat.

A complete breakdown, particularly the sort the victim likes to hear called "nervous" breakdown, is very similar to the breakdown of that bus. It means simply and invariably that the mechanism is a little wobbly in his diagnostic skill and, not knowing just what is the matter, must guess at his face by making a tentative diagnosis of nervous breakdown or just complete breakdown from overwork or fatigue. We've all heard of people kidding themselves about their "work."

A tentative diagnosis is sometimes called a guarded diagnosis. It is one offered subject to change without notice. A tentative diagnosis is very handy in the earlier bulletins from the bedside of the great. "A slight cold" is an admirable one which may be transmitted into almost any ailment the patient may prove to have. "Slight ptomain poisoning" or "slight attack of indigestion" is a convenient tentative diagnosis in case of dilation of a dilated heart.

As long as the notion of nervous tonics prevails, as long as the laity cherishes the idea that the nerve centers or nervous system or nerves produce energy and become "exhausted" (business, social or domestic demands are heavy, so long will nervous breakdown remain popular. I regret to say that these erroneous ideas are still exploited.

Real specialists in all fields are a godsend. Every good doctor avails himself of the aid of specialists in various branches of practice, arguing the advisability of such special aid.

Q. Who was the first woman in the United States to ask the right of suffrage? M. L. L.
A. The first woman to demand suffrage was probably Miss Margaret Brent of Maryland, 1647. Her position was hotly debated and finally denied.

Like Looking at the Sun
Looking into one of the huge rotary kilns where the raw materials for cement are burned into clinker is just like looking at the noonday sun.
The terrific heat required makes a glare of light so intense that the glowing flame would temporarily blind you.
But borrow the workman's colored goggles to protect your eyes while you take another look into the kiln. Then you will see a tornado of powdered coal—or gas or spraying oil—bursting into a sheet of sun-white flame.
Into the other end of the kilp flow the powdered limestone and shale [clay]—the raw materials for cement.
As the slowly revolving kiln tumbles the materials about, they are subjected to gradually increasing heat. During their three-hour journey through this inferno, moisture and gases are first given off. Finally as the powdered materials reach the sunwhite flame, they half melt into glass-hard balls called "clinker." This clinker, an entirely new chemical compound, when finely powdered is portland cement.
Portland cement kilns consume great quantities of fuel—30 pounds of coal or its equivalent for each 94-pound sack of cement. For the whole cement making process the consumption of coal is approximately 50 pounds a sack—more than half a ton of coal to a ton of cement.

LATEST MARKET REPORT

GRAIN

Chicago Review.
Chicago.—With the government report regarding wheat conditions as bullish, the wheat market showed a decided upward tendency today during the early dealings. The export estimate of the domestic yield of spring wheat was not only smaller than private reports had indicated, but was the smallest since 1919. As a result the market received fresh support and little disposition to sell short was manifested. The opening, which started from 3/4c lower to 1/2c up, closed at 1 1/2c, followed by a slight sag and then by a moderate general advance.
Corn and oats rallied with wheat, although at first the government report about corn had a bearish effect. The opening was 1/4c lower, but soon recovered, and the market sagged a little further and then scored slight gains. Corn started unchanged to 1/4c up, Dec. 42 1/2c, and later advanced 1/2c to 43 1/2c. Oats started 1/4c lower, but soon recovered, and the market sagged a little further and then scored slight gains. Oats started 1/4c lower, but soon recovered, and the market sagged a little further and then scored slight gains.

POISON NOT FOUND IN WOMAN'S BODY ON INITIAL TEST

White Plains, N. Y.—The metallic poisoning found in Mrs. Gertrude Gorman Webb's body after her death was not found when an analysis was made two weeks earlier. This was made known for the first time last night by Dr. William J. Meyer, who said that he had ordered an examination on Sept. 11, which proved negative. After Mrs. Webb's death, an analysis performed by toxicologists showed poison had been in the body, though in quantities insufficient to cause death without contributory causes. The knowledge narrowed the grand jury investigation down to a question of when the poison was introduced. Dr. Meyer, who refused to sign a death certificate on the ground that death was not due to natural causes, said he had told the grand jury that the first analysis had shown no poison in the wealthy society woman's body. He explained the negative test by saying that Mrs. Webb's organs had ceased to excrete the poison at the time Dr. Smith had made his examination.

House of Dry Agent Blown up

Steubenville, O.—The home of Charles Pearce, 36, prohibition enforcement officer at Smithfield, O., west of here, was blown up today by dynamite. Pearce, his wife and baby escaped serious injury. The blast partially wrecked the city hall opposite the Pearce home, the Spragg restaurant, the home of Mrs. Mary Merriam and broke windows in three score residences. The dynamite, placed under the front porch of the Pearce home, wrecked the structure and it collapsed. Pearce, his wife and 17 months' old baby, were thrown into the cellar with the debris. Pearce escaped himself, rescued his baby, and with the aid of neighbors dug his wife from the ruins. The baby was cut and bruised. Mrs. Pearce's back was injured. Mrs. Merriam's home, adjoining the Pearce home, was seriously damaged. The woman, who had been seriously ill, had to be removed from the tottering structure with ladders to the second floor. The damage caused by the explosion is estimated in excess of $2,000. Miners enroute to work claim to have seen four strangers near the Pearce home and others report they saw an automobile with several men passengers leaving town shortly before the blast.

Blames Carp for Ruining Hunting at Koshkonong

Awakened and renewed interest in the rehabilitation of Lake Koshkonong to the former position which it held as one of the best duck hunting regions in the country, is being shown and a concerted movement may be started to restore the wildfowl feeding grounds. Sportsmen who in recent years were in favor of the lake, but who have since been deterred by the deplorable, hunting conditions, are offering assistance to the movement which may be started by the Janesville Black Walloon League has announced he will lend his assistance.

Meeting Tuesday Night. The report of the survey made by the United States bureau representative of conditions in Lake Koshkonong has attracted much attention. The Gazette has been handed a copy of the report of the B. Terrell, Oshkosh sportsman, on the Lake Koshkonong situation. Mr. Terrell declares the carp are largely responsible for the condition.

Thousands of pounds of the carp, alleged arch enemy of the sportsman on Lake Koshkonong are being removed from the lake and shipped to New York and Chicago markets. Up to Friday, 104,000 pounds had been removed in sailing by the seven canoes at work. The work is attracting much attention from sportsmen and automobile buffs may be seen at Newville and Maple Bluff every day.

The fishermen are J. M. Kernan, Leo Adler, Dick Miller, Ross Thompson, Buster Thompson and D. D. Brown and Co. Mr. Terrell's report on the Lake Koshkonong situation which he made sometime ago for the Black Hawk club of Jefferson county will be of interest to duck hunters who are interested in the reasons why Koshkonong is no longer the fine hunting grounds that it was 25 years ago.

Mr. Terrell says: "Not many years ago, Lake Koshkonong was probably the best duck lake in Wisconsin. The Black Hawk club and the sportsmen who were known to the world over. During the last few years however, through the depredations of carp and other causes, the fine wildfowl feeding grounds of the lake have been destroyed. Carp, which were formerly abundant in Lake Koshkonong, have nearly disappeared. With the disappearance of the beds of cane and grass, wild rice and other vegetation, the waves have secured such a sweep across the lake, that more and more of the marsh is being lost each year, and the canoe islands which formed some of the best shooting points are disappearing year by year.

Little Vegetation Left. Mr. Terrell states that mud Lake does not seem to be so badly affected by carp as Lake Koshkonong and in periods of low water can be quite effectively shut off from Lake Koshkonong. After a search for the vegetation on which the wildfowl subsist, Mr. Terrell has largely lost the parts of Lake Koshkonong are as bare as a ball-room floor.

Want Ducks or Carp? It is alleged by certain people that one reason that carp are not taken out and are so numerous in this and many other lakes, in Wisconsin, is that a certain element want the carp left in these lakes for carp fishing purposes or duck hunting. "This may or may not be true," Mr. Terrell says. "The time has come when those interested in Lake Koshkonong should decide whether they want carp fishing or duck hunting. If they want duck hunting, then by seining or otherwise, as many of the carp as possible should be taken out. If they want carp fishing, the dream of restoring Lake Koshkonong to the feeding and breeding place for wildfowl of days gone by, must be forever forgotten. If Lake Koshkonong is made into a vast carp farm, conditions for ducks will continue to grow worse each year and carp will probably eventually destroy a large part of the marsh and their own source of food."

ST. LOUIS BROWNS TO PLAY CHAMPIONS OF BADGER LEAGUE. On the following Sunday, the Fox River All-Stars, composed of members of the Milwaukee club, and assisted by Joe Hammer and Babe Lutzke, will play the Browns at Menasha.

ROLIE'S ELEVEN IN TWO VICTORIES. From the performance of Milliken college's football team in the first two games of the season, it appears that Rolie Williams is making a success as a football coach. SNOW FALL IS JUST AS HEAVY AS EVER

Way Back Yonder it Did Not Get Any Deeper Than Now.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Washington.—No, we are not having lighter snowfalls than when grandfather was a boy," says the weather bureau of the United States department of agriculture, "nor are we having appreciably greater ones." When some reminiscence relative remarks, "We do not have the big snows nowadays, that we did when I was a boy, and I don't think we will ever have them again," one may answer with conviction that the records of the weather bureau tell otherwise. The heaviest snowfall in the United States was a boy in the seventies or eighties probably reached that boy's shoulders, but would be less than knee high with his present stature. Again, many men who now live in cities were brought up in the country, where large drifts are piled up when the wind has full sweep over the prairie.

Heaviest in Recent Years
Records at Springfield, Ill., dating from 1854, show the greatest fall on record, 10.5 inches, to have occurred in the winter of 1912-1913. January of 1918 was the most severe month in the climatological history of Illinois, with both low temperature and heavy snowfall, combined with heavy winds. At Albany and New York the severest winter occurred more than 50 years ago, but there have been only six winters with more snow than fell in 1922-1923. Records at New Haven, Conn., seem to indicate a gradual falling off in snowfall, but the heaviest occurred in the winter of 1915-1916. Last year the total was 10.5 inches above normal. Those who believe the climate is changing will take comfort in learning that the greatest snowfall on record at Boston, Mass., (56.4 inches), was in 1870-1871, but the winter with the least snow, (5.3 inches), was only two years later.

Jack in the Box
At Portland, Me., the greatest snowfall for a winter, (12.5 inches), occurred in 1887-1888, but last winter with but one-half inch less was next in amount. "In the west we find that Cheyenne's winter of least snow was in 1885-1886, and the greatest snowfall at Salt Lake City occurred in 1916-1917, and the second, third and fourth, since then. Viewing the subject in a broad way, one is led to believe that the heaviest snowfalls in the years to come just as there have been in the past, and it is probable that present records will be exceeded in many places."

Germany Severe on War Traitors

Leipzig.—Germany's highest court shows little mercy for men arraigned before it for treason in the great war. Gerhard Stroy was recently given a life sentence for having betrayed his country in March, 1915. The evidence showed that he deserted the German army and went over to the French. A short time after he joined the French artillery fire against the entrenchments where Stroy had been serving showed that he had revealed all details of the positions to the enemy.

Stroy returned to Germany in 1920, and was arrested at his home in Madgeburg and charged with high treason, which he admitted. The sentence was that he was badly treated by superiors, and could not endure further military service.

FRAUDULENT LAND AGENTS FACE LAW IN CALIFORNIA

Los Angeles.—Prosecution of persons who misrepresent farm and ranch values in California was promised by Edw. R. Kaiser, state real estate commissioner upon his return here after a recent tour of the state. "There is no occasion to sell poor land," Mr. Kaiser declared. "After a careful survey of the land situation I found that there is a wealth of splendid land in this state, more than enough to meet the requirements of the people for many years. There is no excuse for the malpractice of buying up worthless land and selling it as having agricultural or other value. After my survey I am more determined than ever to prosecute any misrepresentation of real estate."

POLICE CHIEFS MEET
Milwaukee.—Law enforcement officers from nearly every large city in the state were gathering here today to attend the annual convention of the Wisconsin Chiefs of Police association.

LEGION HEAD INDIGNANT OVER CONDITIONS AT BELLEAU WOOD.

New York.—An investigation of what he says are the deplorable conditions of the American military cemetery of Belleau Wood, France, will be demanded of congress, Edward E. Spafford, New York state commander of the American Legion, said today. Commander Spafford, in a lengthy statement, expressed indignation that a "poor box" is kept at the entrance to the cemetery for the solatation of funerals from foreign and American visitors to maintain the grounds where 2,170 American soldiers and marines are sleeping their last sleep. Congress failed to provide. The legion commander's statement was based on a dispatch to an afternoon newspaper from Paris describing the state of the cemetery as pitiable because the appropriation of congress were insufficient to maintain it. It said officials of the graves-registration service in France knew nothing of the "poor box" and thought it might be a device of the French laborers to extract tips. The Paris dispatch quoted American visitors to the cemetery as saying that the ground was bare and resembled the foundation construction of a New York skyscraper in its muddy and ugly state.

NEGLECTING DEAD BURIED IN FRANCE

Expressing gratification that the condition had been revealed, Commander Spafford said that the legion would demand punishment of every American who had been guilty of neglect of duty. He said the legion had been promised that the cemetery would be placed in perfect condition last summer. "If those wonderful men who died as Belleau Wood and Chateau Thierry are to have their graves neglected," the statement read, "then one of the chief reasons for the existence of our great legion has been forgotten. These men shall not be forgotten; nor shall they lie in neglected graves. "One thing is certain: The American people demand an accounting. If there is any satisfactory reason for conditions such as those described at Belleau Wood, we want to hear it at once. If not, those whom the blame lies must answer for it. "An Affront to the Memory." "So far as the placement of the poor box in the cemetery is concerned, that alone is an affront to the memory of the men lying there." Amazement at the conditions described was expressed by Adjutant General Ligon of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who visited the cemetery in May last year. He felt confident that if the cemetery was being neglected it was not the fault of the graves registration service.

WISCONSIN RURAL SCHOOLS ADVANCE

But There's Still Lots to be Done Says Woman Who Surveyed Rock County.

Wisconsin is making an advance in rural school education but much yet remains to be done, the United States bureau of education found in a report by Katherine M. Cook, a specialist in rural teaching, who visited Rock county several months ago in making her survey.

These state rural supervisors spend their entire time in efforts to improve rural education, the report says. "The salaries of rural supervisors teachers in Wisconsin have been paid from state sources since 1916," the report says. "During the present biennial period the salaries of these teachers were increased, resulting in an expenditure of more than $200,000 for rural supervision by the state during the last year. Special state aid also is given to children living over two miles from elementary schools and over three miles from a free high school to assist in paying the necessary expenses involved in school attendance."

Unequal Charges
As a whole the report criticized the lack of attention given the rural schools in the United States. It charged:

1. Country boys and girls are not getting fair treatment, educationally.
2. Rural people do not get from the state systems, or the state institutions, the same service that the cities get.
3. The ruralists are deprived of the advantages of public institutions of higher learning because of the poor resources of the lower schools.
4. The country people do not participate in the general benefits in proportion to the amount they pay for school support.
5. The farmer often pays more and receives less in educational returns than any other class of taxpayer.

The average country school is open only 95 days of the year, the report says, while the average city school is open 245 days. Of the 10,000,000 children living in rural territory, only 8,000,000 are enrolled at school, and their average attendance is only 70 per cent; while of the 11,000,000 enrollment of children in the cities, the average daily attendance is 70 per cent.

Farmer Awakening
But, the report states, the agriculturists all over the country are awakening to the need of better schools, as they are to better advantages, and the states that used to be backward are reorganizing state departments, and in-

ROAD PROBLEMS BEFORE CO. BOARDS

New Wisconsin Tax Law Has Changes Affecting Counties of State.

Members of county boards in the 17 Wisconsin counties are preparing to meet November 13 when they open their annual sessions for consideration of county problems. Highway matters and taxes will be the principal items on the business calendar of the meetings.

The new Wisconsin automobile weight tax law has made changes in the Wisconsin highway statutes affecting counties. Distribution of maintenance funds, and of state aid has been changed in a manner that will probably result in consideration by county boards.

It is also reported by the highway commission that most county bond issues for road improvements have run out, with the result that there will be a marked curtailment of construction during the next season. A number of counties are expected to consider further bonding issues for road purposes.

Dance hall regulation promises to be a subject of lively concern in most of the counties. Women's clubs and civic organizations are backing county participation in the provisions of the Ridgway law, enacted by the 1923 legislature, which gives the boards authority to license all public places of amusement, and to provide supervision.

Road houses are expected to be the first to receive attention from those supporting county regulation. Should provisions of the statute be applied to these places, it would devolve upon the county, to license the places, appoint supervisors who would inspect the premises, and otherwise regulate the resorts. The law provides that children under 16 years of age could not attend without a chaperon. Violations of the prohibition law by those attending the dance hall would be ground for revoking the license.

A number of local problems of county concern are to be dealt with by the county boards during their meetings.

Blame Garbage for Cholera Outbreaks
Three of 22 outbreaks of hog cholera, which occurred in Wisconsin during the first 30 days of September, were found in Rock county, according to a report of the department of agriculture. Heavy losses were suffered in almost every case and the source of infection in 10 cases was definitely traced to the feeding of city garbage or butcher's meat scraps to the swine, the report states.

WHY DO STUDENTS FLUNK IN STUDIES?

(By Associated Press)

Ample. What makes students fail and how can the long procession of flunkers wending their homeward way be stopped?

These are the questions which Lawrence college is trying to answer once and for all this winter. Dr. R. C. Mullenix, professor of sociology, has been appointed director of admissions and dean of freshmen, to conduct investigations and to prevent, if possible, the enormous number of failures which occur in a student's first year at college.

The first problem, according to Dr. Mullenix, will be to eliminate potential mental and moral failures before they come, not after they arrive. Every student who comes to Lawrence is to be investigated. His ability is gauged and his high school record is obtained. His moral character is also investigated, the announcement said.

"College departments turn out students like spare parts in an automobile factory," Dr. Mullenix declared. "Nobody knows who assembles them. In other words, our colleges are getting so big that there is no way of giving a student individual attention. We intend to eliminate some of the

Good Bread and Your Teeth

IF you serve HOLSUM bread faithfully every day there will be on your table for your family a goodly supply of calcium, necessary for the keeping of the body bones in vigor and the teeth firm.

Calcium is essential to the growth of the bone structure in children. Without a proper supply of it the body would readily yield to disease. HOLSUM bread contains 18 percent of the required amount. Eaten with milk alone it will give all the mineral salts needed.

Remember, there are differences in bread quality. HOLSUM is scientifically healthful, while at the same time delicious to the taste, appetizingly full of zestful flavor. Give the children plenty of it; eat more of it yourself. But remember, don't just say "bread"—say HOLSUM.

Here's a delicious luncheon recipe:

Stuffed Green Peppers

Remove stems and inside from six peppers. Put the shells into boiling water and let them cook five minutes, then put them in cold water. Make a stuffing as follows:

- | | |
|---------------------------|----------------------|
| 1 cup bread crumbs | 1/2 teaspoon salt |
| 1 cup finely chopped ham | 1/4 teaspoon paprika |
| 1 tablespoon grated onion | 1/4 teaspoon thyme |

Drain the pepper shells and fill with stuffing. Sprinkle tops with buttered bread crumbs. Place the peppers in a deep casserole, pour one-half cup of water or stock around them and bake in a moderate oven thirty minutes.
